

Dear Advocates,

Thank you for your unwavering commitment to advancing respiratory care and supporting the Sustainable Cardiopulmonary Rehabilitation Services in the Home Act. Your advocacy has been instrumental in driving momentum for this critical legislation, and we are pleased to announce that it has been reintroduced in the 119th Congress (H.R. 783/S. 248).

This bill represents a significant step forward in ensuring that patients with chronic respiratory and cardiac conditions receive the care they need in the comfort of their homes. By expanding access to home-based rehabilitation services, we can improve patient outcomes, enhance quality of life, and reduce hospitalizations—benefits that are essential to both patients and the healthcare system as a whole.

Now more than ever, the engagement of the respiratory therapy community is crucial. As frontline experts in pulmonary rehabilitation, your voices help shape policies that directly impact patients and providers. We encourage you to continue advocating for this bill, reaching out to legislators, and spreading awareness of its importance.
